Sandigan junks gov't bid on 20% of SMC shares

By Nelson F. Flores

THE SANDIGANBAYAN on Monday dismissed the government's motion for reconsideration of the antigraft court's 2003 decision lifting the sequestration order on the disputed 20-percent shares of businessman Eduardo "Danding" Cojuangco in food and beverage giant San Miguel Corp.

In a 10-page decision penned by Justice Diosdado Peralta, the Sandiganbayan said the government's contention in the motion was unmeritorious. It noted that invalidating a writ of sequestration and questions involving ownership were two different things.

"The issue as to the non-validity of the writs and the issues as to the legitimate ownership of the questioned shares of stocks are not co-dependent," the court said.

The government, in its motion for reconsideration, said the Sandiganbayan's October 2003 ruling was "premature" and "misplaced," insisting that Cojuangco and his co-defendants had admitted on several occasions to using coconut levy funds to acquire SMC and even UCPB (United Coconut Planters Bank) shares.

The Sandiganbayan ruling paves the way for Cojuangco to sell his SMC shares, provided he complies with the "conditions" set by the antigraft court's First Division, including its [the shares] being subject to the outcome of a pending ownership issue.

The court reiterated that since the ownership issue had remained pending for the last 18 years and since the Presidential Commission on Good Government was still laying claim to the shares, "annotations" should be made in SMC's "relevant corporate books."

The Sandiganbayan in October 2003 lifted the sequestration order on Cojuangco's SMC shares due to "fatal defects" after its justices discovered that eight of the writs were issued by only one PCGG commissioner, while another one did not have factual basis.

"A writ bearing only one signature is an obvious transgression of PCGG rules. The two-commissioner rule is obviously intended to assure a collegial determination of such fact," the Sandiganbayan said.

Cojuangco originally held 47 percent of SMC but the Supreme Court ruled that 27 percent belonged to the coconut farmers from whom the coconut levy was collected since the time of President Ferdinand Marcos.

Ownership of the remaining 20 percent is still being contested by the PCGG.

Pinoys No. 3 among world's bookworms

By Alcuin Papa

WHO says Filipinos don't read anymore?

Filipinos came in third as the world's biggest bookworms after Indians and Chinese, according to a recent international survey.

The NOP World Culture Score index also said Filipinos ranked second in terms of the most number of hours spent in front of the television set per day. Thais ranked number one.

The NOP World Culture Score index surveyed 30,000 consumers aged over 13 in 30 countries from December 2004 to February 2005.

The survey said Filipinos beat the Americans, the British, Russians and Japanese by reading books, newspapers and magazines at an average of 7.6 hours a week.

Indians are the world's biggest bookworms, reading an average of 10.7 hours a week, and the Chinese second with eight hours a week.

In fact, Indians read almost twice as many hours as Americans, who came in 23rd in the list with 5.7 hours. Also, Britons ranked 26th in the survey with 5.3 hours spent in reading. Japanese and Koreans were even lower, at 4.1 and 3.1 hours, respectively.

Analysts from NOP said self-help and inspirational reading could explain India's high figures.

R Sriram, chief executive officer of Crosswords Bookstores, a chain of 26 book shops in India, told the BBC that Indians were extremely entrepreneurial and reading "is a fundamental part of their being."

"They place a great deal of emphasis on reading. That's the reason why they do well in education and universities abroad," he told the BBC News website. "People educate themselves and deal with change throughout their lives. And the way to do that is to update themselves with books."

On the other hand, time spent on reading meant fewer hours in front of the TV set and listening to the radio as Indians came fourth to the last in both.

But curiously, Filipinos came in second as the world's biggest TV watchers, spending an average of 21 hours per week after Thais, who admitted watching TV at an average of 22.4 hours per week.

Taiwanese devoted the most time surfing the Internet outside their work, spending 12.6 hours a day in front of the computer. Filipinos spent an average of 9.8 hours.

According to its website, NOP World is "a top-ten market research power, uniting some of the most renowned US and European research firms into a single global organization." It also describes itself as "a leading supplier of syndicated and custom research."

Typically, I use it as a vehicle for my self-help programs involving alcohol, drug use and/or the company's management. When given the opportunity, I encourage my clients to use the program for personal growth, as well as for business purposes.

Los Angeles, Calif. (AP)—A new study shows that the longer a person is treated with the drug, the more likely they are to have a relapse. The study, published in the Journal of Clinical Psychiatry, found that patients who had been treated for at least 12 weeks had a 50 percent chance of relapsing within 12 weeks of stopping the drug. Patients who had been treated for less than 12 weeks had a 75 percent chance of relapsing within 12 weeks of stopping the drug.

These results suggest that the use of a single, standardized, and validated instrument to assess the impact of the intervention on the target population is a feasible and effective approach to evaluate the impact of the intervention on the target population.

Table 1 shows that the performance drops a lot for the model of  $\alpha = 0.01$  and  $\beta = 0.01$  when the number of iterations is small. This is because the model is not able to learn the optimal policy in a short time.

Abstract—The purpose of this study was to determine the effect of a 12-week training program on the physical fitness and health of sedentary, middle-aged men. The program consisted of three sessions per week, each lasting 45 minutes. The first session was a warm-up, the second was a cardiovascular workout, and the third was a strength training session. The results showed that the participants experienced significant improvements in their cardiovascular fitness, strength, and body composition. The program was well-tolerated and had no adverse effects on the participants' health.

Bishops vow to carry on Sin's fight for truth, integrity

MANILA (Philippine Daily Inquirer) — The Philippine Bishops' Conference (CBCP) has vowed to continue the fight for truth and integrity in the face of the challenges posed by the current administration. The bishops, led by Archbishop of Manila, Cardinal Jaime Sin, expressed their commitment to the Catholic Church's moral teachings and their role in society. They stated that they will continue to speak out against corruption and injustice, and will support the government in its efforts to promote peace and development. The bishops also expressed their concern for the welfare of the Filipino people, particularly the poor and the marginalized. They called for a more just and equitable society, and for the government to be more accountable to the people. The bishops' statement was issued after a meeting of the CBCP in Manila, where they discussed the current situation in the Philippines and the role of the Church in society. They also discussed the challenges they face in carrying out their mission, and the strategies they will use to overcome these challenges. The bishops' statement is seen as a significant contribution to the ongoing debate about the role of the Church in the Philippines, and is expected to have a lasting impact on the country's political and social landscape.

File-swapping sites face suits for piracy

WASHINGTON — The U.S. Justice Dept. has filed a lawsuit against the operators of a file-swapping website, alleging they are distributing copyrighted music without permission.

The lawsuit, filed in federal court in New York, names the operators of the website, which is known as "Napster," as defendants.

The Justice Dept. says the website allows users to share files, including music, with other users. The department says this is a violation of copyright law.

Britain marks 200th anniversary of Battle of Trafalgar

LONDON — Britain is marking the 200th anniversary of the Battle of Trafalgar, a decisive naval battle fought between the British Royal Navy and the combined fleets of the French and Spanish navies.

The battle took place on October 21, 1805, off the coast of Spain. It was a major victory for the British, led by Admiral Lord Nelson, and it established British naval supremacy for the rest of the century.

The anniversary is being celebrated with a variety of events, including reenactments, exhibitions, and fireworks.

US Supreme Court junks journalists' appeal in CIA spy case

WASHINGTON — The U.S. Supreme Court has rejected an appeal by journalists seeking to overturn a lower court ruling that they had no right to see documents in a CIA spy case.

The case, known as United States v. Weber, involved a CIA employee who was accused of leaking classified information to the press. The lower court had ruled that the journalists had no right to see the documents, and the Supreme Court has now affirmed that ruling.

The decision is a setback for journalists who have been seeking to gain access to classified information in the past.

Pakistan on trial as gang rape victim launches appeal

Islamabad, Pakistan, August 10 (AP) — A woman who was gang-raped in a public place in Pakistan has filed an appeal with the Supreme Court to challenge the verdict of a lower court that sentenced her to death.

The woman, who is now 21 years old, was accused of being part of a gang that raped a 17-year-old girl in a public place in Islamabad. The lower court found her guilty and sentenced her to death along with four other men.

The woman's lawyers have argued that the evidence against her is weak and that she should be given a fair trial. They also claim that the death penalty is too harsh for the crime.

The Supreme Court is expected to hear the appeal in the coming weeks. The case has attracted widespread attention in Pakistan and has sparked a debate about the death penalty and the treatment of rape victims.

Refugees vs grandstanding pols

By David Mervin

THEY ARE THE MOST VULNERABLE OF PEOPLE, the refugees who have fled their homes in search of safety. They are the most deserving of our compassion and aid. Yet, in the face of their plight, many politicians are more concerned with grandstanding than with helping them.

It is a sad state of affairs when the lives of innocent people are sacrificed to the political ambitions of a few. We must remember that the refugees are not just statistics; they are human beings with families and dreams. We have a moral obligation to help them, not just for their sake, but for the sake of our own conscience.

The politicians who stand by and do nothing are the real culprits. They are the ones who have allowed the situation to worsen. They are the ones who have failed the people who have trusted them. We must demand that they do better, that they show more compassion and more leadership.

It is time to stop the grandstanding and start the helping. It is time to put the refugees first and the politicians second. Only then can we hope to make a difference in their lives.

LETTERS

To the Editor:

I am writing to you to express my concern about the situation of the refugees. I have read your article and I am deeply moved by the stories of the people who have fled their homes. I am also concerned about the politicians who are more interested in their own careers than in the welfare of the people.

I am writing to you to let you know that I am not alone in my concerns. Many other people are also worried about the situation of the refugees. We are all human beings and we all have a responsibility to help those who are in need. We must stand together and demand that the politicians do their duty.

I am writing to you to let you know that I am not just a person who is worried about the refugees. I am a person who is also worried about the future of our country. I am worried about the people who are being sacrificed to the political ambitions of a few. I am worried about the people who are being ignored by the politicians.

60 teachers to lose
mortgaged homes in
GSIS housing program

By Rosalinda E. Santos

MANILA, March 25 — A group of 60 teachers from the Department of Education (DepEd) Division Office (DDO) in Zamboanga City are set to lose their homes under the Government Service Insurance System (GSIS) housing program.

The teachers, who are members of the DepEd Zamboanga City Teachers' Association (DZCTA), are protesting against the GSIS housing program, claiming that the program is a scam and that the teachers have been misled.

The teachers claim that the GSIS housing program is a scam because the GSIS has not provided them with the promised housing units. They also claim that the GSIS has been collecting money from them for years but has not provided them with the promised housing units.

The teachers are demanding that the GSIS stop collecting money from them and that they be provided with the promised housing units. They are also demanding that the GSIS be held accountable for the scam.

The GSIS has denied the teachers' claims and has said that it is providing them with the promised housing units. It has also said that the teachers are misinterpreting the GSIS housing program.

The teachers are planning to continue their protest until their demands are met. They are also planning to file a complaint with the Department of Education and the GSIS.

Teams formed to search for missing Japanese

MANILA, March 25 — The Philippine Coast Guard (PCG) and the Philippine Navy have formed teams to search for missing Japanese fishermen in the Sulu Sea.

The teams were formed after reports that several Japanese fishermen had been missing for several days. The PCG and the Philippine Navy are working together to search for the missing fishermen.

The teams are equipped with search boats and helicopters. They are also working with local fishermen to help them search for the missing fishermen.

The teams are expected to be in the Sulu Sea for several days. They will continue to search for the missing fishermen until they are found.

Figure 1 consists of nine grayscale images arranged in a 3x3 grid. The top row (images 1, 2, 3) shows a normal skin surface with some texture. The middle row (images 4, 5, 6) shows the lesion appearing as a faint, irregular mark. The bottom row (images 7, 8, 9) shows the lesion becoming more pronounced and darker. The images are labeled with numbers 1 through 9 in the bottom right corner of each panel.

Venus ousts sis' slayer

Sharapova, Federer, Davenport advance

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — Venus Williams, who had been out of the top 10 for nearly a year, defeated her sister Serena Williams in a dramatic final to win the Wimbledon women's singles title.

Williams, 25, defeated her sister Serena, 23, in a dramatic final that lasted 100 minutes. The match was a rematch of their 2002 Wimbledon final, which Serena won in straight sets. This time, Venus took the first set, but Serena fought back to win the next two. Venus then won the fourth set to claim the title.

The victory was a significant moment for Venus, who had been struggling with injuries and a loss of form. She had not won a Grand Slam title since 2000, when she won the Australian Open. This win at Wimbledon marked her return to the top of the sport.

Serena, who had been the dominant force in women's tennis, was disappointed by the loss. She had been on a winning streak, having won the US Open and the French Open earlier in the year. However, she was unable to overcome Venus in the final.

The match was a classic Wimbledon-style battle, with both players showing incredible resilience and skill. Venus's victory was a testament to her ability to overcome adversity and reclaim her place as one of the greatest tennis players of all time.

The diagram illustrates the experimental design. It shows a sequence of three main components: 'Stimulus', 'Response', and 'Verbal Report'. Arrows indicate the flow from Stimulus to Response, and from Response to Verbal Report. There are also feedback loops from the Response and Verbal Report stages back to the Stimulus stage. The entire process is enclosed in a rectangular box.

WITHIN a few days of the election, the results were in. The Democrats had won the House, the Republicans the Senate, and the President was George W. Bush. The results were a surprise to many, but not to those who had followed the campaign closely. The Democrats had won the House by a narrow margin, and the Republicans had won the Senate by a narrow margin. The President was George W. Bush, and the Vice President was Dick Cheney. The results were a surprise to many, but not to those who had followed the campaign closely.

Why, then, do individuals in the network 22 respondents continue to work in the same sector, even though they have been informed about the risks? The fact that individuals work in the same sector suggests that they are not aware of the risks. However, the fact that individuals work in the same sector could also be a result of the fact that they are not aware of the risks.
